■ Summary — Having spoken with the company and looking at full-year guidance and other factors, we think Showa Shell expects the solar business to move into the black in the October-December quarter. However, we think the company's assumptions for factors like sales mix, unit sales and production costs are set at near-best-case levels. Given that the company did not mention a move into the black in FY3/13 at the results briefing, we still think solar earnings will undershoot plan. We think the scale of the undershoot would probably widen considerably if a certain proportion of unit sales fall back into FY12/13. However, in such case, we think the business would likely move into the black in the early half of 2013. We think petroleum segment earnings could also overshoot full-year guidance.

■ Solar business plans — The company expects the solar business to operate at full tilt from the October-December, after some small-scale investments in the July-September. It forecasts an increase in unit sales toward the latter end of the year. It anticipates a strong rise in domestic unit sales, where we assume unit prices are over 30% higher (Figure 1). From 2013, it aims to maintain production by at least 220MW each quarter. We understand that in 2012 it has largely lowered production costs by 30% from year-earlier levels and it aims for a further 20% or so cut in 2013.

■ Solar business issues and talking points — The company appeared confident of its ability to increase output in the October-December quarter. However, considering the April-June production cuts, we heard little to convince that output can be increased on the back of small-scale investments. Demand is growing in Japan following the implementation of legislation governing renewable energy purchases (FIT scheme). We think unit sales could increase sharply in the early half of 2013, with rush demand emerging at end-March 2013 while the purchase price for solar-generated energy is set at ¥42/kWh. We think an influx of imports could mean that domestic price could decline to fall in line with levels overseas.

■ Petroleum — The company booked ¥4bn in inventory gains at group refiners (Seibu/Fuji) and ¥2bn-¥3bn in Apr-Jun. However, it thinks the impact over the full year will be slightly negative. The refining margin is currently greater than the company assumes and margins are also firm in Asia. Accordingly, the company could up exports to maximize profits. With the closure of the Ogimachi refinery, fixed costs have declined and a decrease in working capital should enhance cash flow.

Showa Shell Sekiyu

Valuation

We adopt PBR as our valuation metric for Showa Shell as we believe net assets are an appropriate measure of shareholder value given that 1) oil refining is a mature capital-intensive industry; 2) while domestic demand for oil products is declining, we expect overseas demand for oil and petrochemical products to expand (we expect double-digit YoY growth in Chinese oil refining to continue, and assume that global paraxylene demand will rise 7%-8% annually); and 3) inventory impact can be ameliorated.

Our ¥370 target price references historical PBRs, TOPIX-relative PBRs, and RoE. We set our target PBR at 0.7x, a discount of more than 20% to the TOPIX PBR, given that with a gradual slackening in the domestic supply/demand balance appearing unavoidable, oil refiners have moved quickly to scrap refining facilities, we see refining margins improving off a June bottom, we forecast continued losses in the solar operations, and that disclosure in the solar operations is in our view inadequate. We set our ¥370 target price based on end-FY12/13E, for which we forecast partial impairment of solar panel plants. Our target price equates to an EV/EBITDA multiple (excluding inventory) of 15.2x based on our FY12/12 forecasts and 5.7x based on our FY12/13 forecasts. We think this is broadly appropriate given an EV/EBITDA range of 6x-9x for primary oil distributors.

Risks

Downside risks include 1) a decline in oil business profit levels due to domestic price competition to increase market share; 2) an upswing in refinery costs due to crude oil price increases; 3) a fall in margins in the solar business Showa Shell is developing. On the other hand, upside risks include 1) a rise in domestic and overseas product demand and strong improvement in petroleum prices, 2) a decline in crude oil costs due to a decline in price of crude oil, or 3) a surge in the profitability of the solar business.

Guide to Citi Research Fundamental Research Investment Ratings:

Citi Research stock recommendations include an investment rating and an optional risk rating to highlight high risk stocks.

Risk rating takes into account both price volatility and fundamental criteria. Stocks will either have no risk rating or a High risk rating assigned.

Investment Ratings: Citi Research investment ratings are Buy, Neutral and Sell. Our ratings are a function of analyst expectations of expected total return ("ETR") and risk. ETR is the sum of the forecast price appreciation (or depreciation) plus the dividend yield for a stock within the next 12 months. The Investment rating definitions are: Buy (1) ETR of 15% or more or 25% or more for High risk stocks; and Sell (3) for negative ETR. Any covered stock not assigned a Buy or a Sell is a Neutral (2). For stocks rated Neutral (2), if an analyst believes that there are insufficient valuation drivers and/or investment catalysts to derive a positive or negative investment view, they may elect with the approval of Citi Research management not to assign a target price and, thus, not derive an ETR. Analysts may place covered stocks "Under Review" in response to exceptional circumstances (e.g. lack of information critical to the analyst's thesis) affecting the company and / or trading in the company's securities (e.g. trading suspension). As soon as practically possible, the analyst will publish a note re-establishing a rating and investment thesis. To satisfy regulatory requirements, we correspond Under Review and Neutral to Hold in our ratings distribution table for our 12-month fundamental rating system. However, we reiterate that we do not consider Under Review to be a recommendation.

Relative three-month ratings: Citi Research may also assign a three-month relative call (or rating) to a stock to highlight expected out-performance (most preferred) or under-performance (least preferred) versus the geographic and industry sector over a 3 month period. The relative call may highlight a specific near-term catalyst or event impacting the company or the market that is anticipated to have a short-term price impact on the equity securities of the company. Absent any specific catalyst the analyst(s) will indicate the most and least preferred stocks in the universe of stocks under consideration, explaining the basis for this short-term view. This three-month view may be different from and does not affect a stock's fundamental equity rating, which reflects a longer-term total absolute return expectation. For purposes of NASD/NYSE ratings-distribution-disclosure rules, most preferred calls correspond to a buy recommendation and least preferred calls correspond to a sell recommendation. Any stock not assigned to a most preferred or least preferred call is considered non-relative-rated (NRR). For purposes of NASD/NYSE ratings-distribution-disclosure rules we correspond NRR to Hold in our ratings distribution table for our 3-month relative rating system. However, we reiterate that we do not consider NRR to be a recommendation.

Prior to October 8, 2011, the firm's stock recommendation system included a risk rating and an investment rating. Risk ratings, which took into account both price volatility and fundamental criteria, were: Low (L), Medium (M), High (H), and Speculative (S). Investment Ratings of Buy, Hold and Sell were a function of the Citi Research expectation of total return (forecast price appreciation and dividend yield within the next 12 months) and risk rating. Additionally, analysts could have placed covered stocks "Under Review" in response to exceptional circumstances (e.g. lack of information critical to the analyst's thesis) affecting the company and/or trading in the company's securities (e.g. trading suspension). Stocks placed "Under Review" were monitored daily by management and as practically possible, the analyst published a note re-establishing a rating and investment thesis. For securities in developed markets (US, UK, Europe, Japan, and Australia/New Zealand), investment ratings were: Buy (1) (expected total return of 10% or more for Low-Risk stocks, 15% or more for Medium-Risk stocks, 20% or more for High-Risk stocks, and 35% or more for Speculative stocks); Hold (2) (0%-10% for Low-Risk stocks, 0%-15% for Medium-Risk stocks, 0%-20% for High-Risk stocks, and 0%-35% for Speculative stocks); and Sell (3) (negative total return). For securities in emerging markets (Asia Pacific, Emerging Europe/Middle East/Africa, and Latin America), investment ratings were: Buy (1) (expected total return of 15% or more for Low-Risk stocks, 20% or more for Medium-Risk stocks, 30% or more for High-Risk stocks, and 40% or more for Speculative stocks); Hold (2) (5%-15% for Low-Risk stocks, 10%-20% for Medium-Risk stocks, 15%-30% for High-Risk stocks, and 20%-40% for Speculative stocks); and Sell (3) (5% or less for Low-Risk stocks, 10% or less for Medium-Risk stocks, 15% or less for High-Risk stocks, and 20% or less for Speculative stocks).

Investment ratings are determined by the ranges described above at the time of initiation of coverage, a change in investment and/or risk rating, or a change in target price (subject to limited management discretion). At other times, the expected total returns may fall outside of these ranges because of market price movements and/or other short-term volatility or trading patterns. Such interim deviations from specified ranges will be permitted but will become subject to review by Research Management. Your decision to buy or sell a security should be based upon your personal investment objectives and should be made only after evaluating the stock's expected performance and risk.

Pursuant to Comissão de Valores Mobiliários Rule 483, Citi is required to disclose whether a Citi related company or business has a commercial relationship with the subject company. Considering that Citi operates multiple businesses in more than 100 countries around the world, it is likely that Citi has a commercial relationship with the subject company. Many European regulators require that a firm must establish, implement and make available a policy for managing conflicts of interest arising as a result of publication or distribution of investment research. The policy applicable to Citi Research's Products can be found at https://www.citivelocity.com/cvr/eppublic/citi_research_disclosures.

Compensation of equity research analysts is determined by equity research management and Citigroup's senior management and is not linked to specific transactions or recommendations.

The Product may have been distributed simultaneously, in multiple formats, to the Firm's worldwide institutional and retail customers. The Product is not to be construed as providing investment services in any jurisdiction where the provision of such services would not be permitted.

Subject to the nature and contents of the Product, the investments described therein are subject to fluctuations in price and/or value and investors may get back less than originally invested. Certain high-volatility investments can be subject to sudden and large falls in value that could equal or exceed the amount invested. Certain investments contained in the Product may have tax implications for private customers whereby levels and basis of taxation may be subject to change. If in doubt, investors should seek advice from a tax adviser. The Product does not purport to identify the nature of the specific market or other risks associated with a particular transaction. Advice in the Product is general and should not be construed as personal advice given it has been prepared without taking account of the objectives, financial situation or needs of any particular investor. Accordingly, investors should, before acting on the advice, consider the appropriateness of the advice, having regard to their objectives, financial situation and needs. Prior to acquiring any financial product, it is the client's responsibility to obtain the relevant offer document for the product and consider it before making a decision as to whether to purchase the product. With the exception of our product that is made available only to Qualified Institutional Buyers (QIBs) and other product that is made available through other distribution channels only to certain categories of clients to satisfy legal or regulatory requirements, Citi Research concurrently disseminates its research via proprietary and non-proprietary electronic distribution platforms. Periodically, individual Citi Research analysts may also opt to circulate research posted on such platforms to one or more clients by email. Such email distribution is discretionary and is done only after the research has been disseminated via the aforementioned distribution channels. Citi Research simultaneously distributes product that is limited to QIBs only through email distribution.

The level and types of services provided by Citi Research analysts to clients may vary depending on various factors such as the client's individual preferences as to the frequency and manner of receiving communications from analysts, the client's risk profile and investment focus and perspective (e.g. market-wide, sector specific, long term, short-term etc.), the size and scope of the overall client relationship with Citi and legal and regulatory constraints. Citi Research product may source data from dataCentral. dataCentral is a Citi Research proprietary database, which includes Citi estimates, data from company reports and feeds from Reuters and Datastream.
